J. E. Gilkeson of Roswell, manager of the Gilkeson hotel, is here for a brief visit, unaccompanied by Mrs. Gilkeson.

Paul P. Pitkay, who is in charge of the reconnaissance work of the forest service on the Gila forest, is in the city for a day or two on forest service business.

H. B. Wahn, for some time past a member of the regiment of arborists of the local forest service district, will be transferred to the forest of September to District 2, with headquarters in Denver. Mr. Wahn will have charge of winter power surveying work in that district, a post of some responsibility.

Arthur C. Adams was the sole representative of the activity of the police last night when police court opened this morning. Arthur said he was not guilty of disturbing the peace, an offence with which he was charged, and Judge Craig postponed the trial to a week to give the attorney who brought Arthur into the dock of the law a chance to say what he thought about it.

E. K. McElroy, for several months the popular manager of the Alvarado hotel lunch room here, left last night for Las Vegas, where he will take over the temporary management of El Dorado, the baby house of the Harvey system. Mr. McElroy is one of the brightest young men in the Harvey service and will doubtless prove a popular relief manager at Las Vegas. Mr. McElroy will probably return to Albuquerque within three months.

Those farmers who visited the Big Gross-Kelly store yesterday turned green with envy at some rather remarkable corn exhibits there. This corn was grown by a local man in an ordinary Albuquerque back yard. The man is Eusebio Ognin, and the corn, of which only three stalks are shown, bears ears 22 to 24 inches long. These are quite the largest ears of corn seen in the city in some time, if not indeed the largest ever shown here. Mr. Ognin says the corn is just a fair sample of the two acres patch he is growing at Eighth street and Mountain road. The giant ears will be placed in the bureau of immigration's products exhibit.

Don't think that pines can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Dean's ointment 50 cents at any drug store.
